GROUP RECORD

her crochet hook is seldom idle. She has made hundreds of doilies and hot pads and afghans, etc., which she gives to her relatives and friends. She is active in the Daughters of the Pioneers, her club and Relief Society, and block teaching. She never misses Sunday School or Sacrament meeting. Both young and old love to visit her home and enjoy her keen wit and humor.

In her younger years it was a joy for her to prepare large meals for all her children and grandchildren. No one ever left her home hungry.

Emma Jordan cared for her mother in her home for three years before mother died, at the age of 92.

When George Borlan Jordan was three years old the family moved to the ranch, six miles north of Heber, on the Provo River. His mother had taught school in Heber and she gave her children what schooling they received.

Their first house was of logs, built by a half-brother, John P. It was a rough lumber house, with dirt floor. They suffered many hardships. George's father was a farmer and stone mason. He made many of the headstones in Heber Cemetery. The children rubbed them smooth with another sandstone.

They never had a stove. They baked in a camp oven. Hay was cut with a scythe and raked with a hand rake. The farm work was done with oxen. George started working in the fields when eight years old. He cut grain with a cradle and bound it by hand. They moved to a log house one-half mile down in the field. He then went to work for William Moulton on his dairy farm for $15 a month and worked for seven years. Then he made $30 a month, which was considered top wages. From there he went to work at the Ontario drain tunnel, now the Park Utah mine.

They moved back to the Jordan ranch, 80 acres, and built a two-room log house. They lived on the farm and worked in the Valejo mine and on the farm after work. He rode to work on a horse.

They bought Jordanelle in 1914. (Erv's house was partly built, moved the two-room log house up there, and lived in it while building another house. When house was finished, the log house (first) was used as a granary and still stands today as a granary.) He raised cattle, later sold and bought first sheep and sold out to Erv and Bill all but 10 acres, where Jordanelle resort is located. Run store and cabins at Jordanelle several years and sold to Mae and Buys Cummings.

He courted in a horse and cart, and was married on Church Farm, in a log house.

He earned $3 a day at the mine. Later he moved to Park and worked in the drain tunnel. Minnie was born in Park.

He bought a home in Heber so the children could receive schooling, Emma joining him in the winter.

George was a North Road supervisor for horses and buggies from the River bridge to the county line. He was school trustee in Riverdale from River bridge south to Heber. He attended Church in the schoolhouse where Pole camp is now. Parties and dances were held there.

His father died from pneumonia when he was 11 years old. Mother died of dropsy when he was 17 years old. Both he and and his brother managed the farm and earned the living for the family. He contracted typhoid fever before mother died. Sister Mary Jane died.

The family resided at Elkhorn Ward and Heber City. George was an Elder in the Church, a farmer and ranchman.

JOHN JORDAN

John Jordan was born January 4, 1812, in Courtney, Berkshire, England, son of John Jordan Sr. and Charlot Townsend.

He married Cynthia Elizabeth Phillips, February 18, 1842, and she died March 25, 1847.

Children: Jacob Henry, John Phillips (Julia Smith).

He married Charlott Malinda Colvin August 16, 1847, who was born November 20, 1807. She died in February, 1851.

He married Eliza Humphreys Robins, daughter of Richard Humphreys and Esther. Children: Charlott Malinda, Elizabeth Synthis (William Crowford) and Joseph Hyrum (Elizabeth M. Givens).

He married Mary Spiers in 1864.

Children: Eliza Dunlap, Mary Jane, Jon James, George B., and Allen S.

John Jordan came to Utah in 1852, with an independent company.

John Jordan settled at Heber in 1859. He was a veteran of the Walker and Black Hawk War. He also took part in the Echo Canyon trouble. A High Priest, he was first counselor to John M. Murdock and president of the High Priests' Quorum.

JAMES LAIRD

James Laird, son of Edward and Sarah Barr Laird, was born December 25, 1825, at Bonney, before County Antrin, Ireland, and died September, 1884, at Salt Lake City, Utah.

He married Mary Rennie on August 20, 1847, in Scotland. She was the daughter of Hugh Rennie and Elizabeth Crealman, and was born July 3, 1826, at Glenhead Parish, Killpatrick, Scotland, and died October 20, 1883, in Salt Lake City, Utah.

In 1840, at about the age of 15, he ran away from school and home and joined the navy. After three or four years he became homesick and obtained a furlough. At home he was received with open arms by his mother, but the year he left home his father had passed away, so he decided to stay home and care for his mother.

In the fall he decided to go to the coal mines in Scotland to work, where he met Michael Rennie, who had a strong testimony of the gospel. He introduced Mormonism and his sister Mary to James. Mary became his wife in 1847, being married by Michael Rennie. He went home to Ireland to share the gospel message with his mother, but the family were all against it. He returned to Scotland and the Rennie family. While Mary was studying the gospel she asked for a sign to know if the gospel was true. Then at a testimony meeting she was given the privilege of speaking in tongues. She never doubted after that.

Two sons, Joseph Smith Laird and Edward Laird, were both born in Scotland. James was called on a mission 1853, traveling without purse or script. Mary and their sons returned to the home of her parents.

About this time, Michael died. His last testimony was: "I know Joseph was a true Prophet of God."

The ship "Thornton," which sailed from Liverpool, England, in 1856, arrived in New York on April 14, 1856. Among its passengers were James Laird, his wife and three children. They started their eventful trip with the Captain Willie company on August 20, 1856. One of James' tasks was to assist in burying the dead and to be a helper to Captain Willie.

Mary had in her luggage three special articles she wanted brought to Utah. A set of baby clothes, one green dress and a man's suit of clothes. Before they reached Salt Lake City the baby clothes were traded for a quart of sugar. Each day a little was added to some water and fed to the baby after it was weaned. Some years later the green silk dress was made into Temple aprons they used when they received their endowments. The suit of clothes was given to a man going on a mission for the Church.

The Willie company arrived in Salt Lake on November 9, 1856, and was sent to the farm of Leonard W. Hardy in the mouth of Parleys Canyon. The next summer of 1857 he moved his family to Spanish Fork and in 1859 they came to Heber. Here they spent the first winter with eighteen other families.

While in Heber a baby boy was born in December, 1861, and died in 1862 of diphtheria.

While living in Heber they purchased property in Parleys Canyon and later moved there and operated a half-way station for people to rest and tend their teams. James and his son also hauled freight and wood from Park City to Salt Lake.

On November 24, 1868, James married Frances Churchill, a girl who had been working for them. Later he was divorced.

Diphtheria again came into the family, taking the lives of three children in a month: Sophia, October 6, 1871, at the age of three; Harriet, October 19, 1871, age seven years; and Mary, November 2, 1871, age 12.

The family moved to Goshen for a time, where a son was born. He was the tenth and last child.

Again they moved back to their canyon home, and there the dreaded disease of diphtheria visited them again, and in February of 1878 took the life of Sarah Jane, eight years old. At this time Mary Laird's health broke and she developed neuralgia of the heart.

They lived so far from Church headquarters that permission was given them to hold Sunday School at the Laird home.
